Stock Prices Up as Gain in Cotton Persists

Shorts Cover Before Holidays as Speculative Sentiment Is More Cheerful;

ecame responsive yesterday to influences making for a further rally. As the firmness of stocks continued proshort revealed a disinclination to remain in that position over the threeday holiday. Their covering, coupled with maneuvers by speculators in quest of further gains, imparted strong impulses to rally further to virtually the whole list, but industrial; stocks, which had been weakest during the three-week decline which was broken Thursday of last week, showed the larger gains. In Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin, Crucible, American Sumatra and General Electric the shorts had an especially unpleasant time. Gains of one quent among the rails, and the industrials gained from one to three points. The average of twenty representative rails jumped from 63.85 to 64.80, and that of thirty industrials from 63.79 to

In cotton the realization by speculators of the significance of the shore crop outweighed the effect of profittaking sales in the cotton market, and price's climbed from 52 to 68 points igher. Steady accumulation went on, and a substantial volume of this was attributed to trade buying. In the wheat market, however,

Thursday's rally brought increased ofprices, after gaining 11/4 to 11/4 cents at the start, reacted subsequently, and closed with net losses of 1% cents. Foreign exchange was easier. Sterling lost 31/4 cents on the expectation of large offerings of cotton bills.

In Wall Street Investment

Mexican Petroleum lived up to its eputation as a fast mover yesterday, and again supplied most of the fireworks in the stock market. Disregarding the less favorable advices from Mexico, excepting for a brief period after the opening, it forged ahead on heavy dealings, and in the afternoon rushed up to 107½, a new high. It closed at 106, up 2 points. The action of the stock was watched with special interest, in view of the fact that word went the rounds of the Street on Thursday that Mexican Petroleum would touch 110 before the close yesterday. It fell 2½ points short of reaching this goal. The action of the stock yesterday suggested that there is still a considerable short interest which has been trapped by the recovery from the extreme low of 84½ of last week. after the opening, it forged ahead on

The banking community was not inclined to take seriously the message of President Obregon to the Mexican Congress insisting that he will not sign a treaty with the United States government as a condition to recognition.

"The main thing to consider at this time," observed a leading banker, "is that the air is being cleared and many of the points at issue between Mexico and the United States are in a fair way to being satisfactorily adjusted."

Mexican government bonds, which were extremely strong on Thursday on the promising Mexican developments, were somewhat easier yesterday, although they did not lose all of the ground gained the previous day.

The Break in Sterling

Numerous explanations were put forward yesterday to account for the sudden weakness displayed by sterling exchange rates. Demand sterling broke from the $3.74 quoted at the close on Thursday to $3.70%. Some of the brokers said the market had reacted on expectations of heavy offering of cotton bills drawn against English and other foreign purchases of American cotton in recent days. At the same time it was pointed out that the market had enjoyed a substantial recovery in the course of a week, and a technical reaction was not unexpected. The first weakness in sterling developed in London. The other exchanges were easier.

Equipment Bonds

Question—Will you kindly advise me as to the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., their business, etc., and if in your opinion their because of the per cent bond of 1942, quoted at around 78, is a safe investment, where security is the first essential, with a possible rise in value? I notice by their last report for the year it would seem secure, but that is the extent of my knowledge of them. Would you place them in the same class of bonds as Great Northern joint 64%, Northwestern Bell 7 per cent or Canadian Northern Railway 7 per cent?—W. C.
